THE SHIELD

The College Shield includes symbols associated with the Dominican Order over the years since its founding in the thirteenth century. A black and white fleur-de-lis cross, emblazoned on a field of four black and white gyrons, is central.

In the medieval art of heraldry, the fleur-de-lis cross symbolizes duty, self-sacrifice, victory; the gyronny, unity. Black signifies wisdom, silence, fortitude; white -- peace, purity, charity, and sincerity. The motto VERITAS-TRUTH is associated with the shield.

This shield and this motto link us with our forebears in the Dominican family, champions of faith under the standard of the Cross, united with Christ and with one another in charity and in the quest for Truth.

ALMA MATER

O're the hills of San Rafael
 Uplifts the sun;
 A torch of fire has cleft the dark
 Day has begun
 Long, long the years darkness denied us
 Light of the Mind
 You have upraised the torch Mother benign.
 Dominic's child, Mother well born
 We are your own;
 Be the light you have given us
 Through the world sown.

ALL HAIL

Dominican - Dominican
 Our school to us so dear
 We'll honor you,
 We'll cherish you
 Through all the future years.

Your flag unfolds the white and gold
 Beloved you'll always be.
 And from our hearts
 Thou never part;
 All Hail! All Hail!

"Beyond Every Mountain

Lies A Horizon,

After Every Struggle

A Reward"

In our ever changing world each new day begins a new struggle. Each day brings a new path to follow, a new mountain to climb. Each day a new challenge is set before us which we must decide to accept or reject. Rejection is, of course, the easier way. But it leads us nowhere. It is only in meeting challenges and coming to grips with the difficulties confronting us that we gradually approach the top of the mountain.

"Beyond every mountain lies a horizon." Emblazoned on this shield is the mountain - that mountain which we all are challenged to climb. The color green represents life itself. The mountain may be steep but it is full of energy and being - it is solid as nature. This mountain cannot be destroyed but it can certainly be climbed.

In the foreground is a pine tree - sturdy, long living evergreen. Always fresh, always vital, the tree enhances our faith in our own ability to endure the hardships of our surroundings.

The brilliant gold of the horizon shows us the beauty and majesty of our accomplishments. We now can accept the riches of life as our reward. Our hearts are enriched with the joy and the satisfactions of knowing we have worked hard and have been rewarded.

Shield Song

The years will come
The years will go
And time moves on
And we will grow.

We'll give our best
We'll give no less
Throughout the years
With smiles and tears
For all we know.

The seasons turn
We'll change with them
We'll live and learn
Until the end.

So grow to live
There's much to do
You'll live and love
You'll live and love
As seasons do . . . .

CLASS SONG

We're just too good to be true
There isn't much we can't do
We've got the school at our feet
There's no one else to compete
The Senior Class will be here
To guide you all through the year
At long last we have arrived
And you'll thank God we're alive!

Boredom is not in the past
You've got the Seniors at last
We're here to brighten your year
To make you smile through your tears
Don't think we're better than you
Though this could prove to be true
The Senior Class has arrived
And you'll thank God we're alive!

Now life's exciting
We brought our warmth and joy
Now it's inviting
We've brought ourselves and more
We're the Class of '75
By far the best class ALIVE!!

"By his divine power, he has given us all the things that we need for life and for true devotion, bringing us to know God himself, who has called us by his own glory and goodness. In making these gifts, he had given us the guarantee of something very great and wonderful to come; through them you will be able to share the divine nature and to escape corruption in a world that is sunk in vice. But to attain this, you will have to do your utmost yourselves, adding goodness to the faith that you have, understanding to your goodness, self-control to your understanding, patience to your self-control, true devotion to your patience, kindness toward your fellow men to your devotion, and, to this kindness, love. If you have a generous supply of these, they will not leave you ineffectual or unproductive; they will bring you to a real knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ."

In the infinite resignation there is peace and rest; every man who wills it, who has not abased himself by scorning himself . . . can train himself to make this movement which in its pain reconciles one with existence. Infinite resignation is that shirt we read about in the old fable. The thread is spun under tears; the cloth is bleached with tears, the shirt sewn with tears; but then too it is a better protection than iron and steel. The imperfection in the fable is that a third party can manufacture this shirt. The secret in life is that everyone must sew it for himself, and the astonishing thing is that a man can sew it fully as well as a woman. In the infinite resignation there is peace and rest and comfort in sorrow - that is, if the movement is made normally.

"Some men and women, indeed, there are who can live on smiles and the word 'yes' forever. But for others (indeed for most) this is too tepid and relaxed a moral climate. Passive happiness is slack and insipid, and soon grows mawkish and intolerable. Some austerity and wintry negativity, some roughness, danger, stringency, and effort, some 'no! no!' must be mixed in, to produce the sense of existence with character and texture and power."

Dave is the kind of person who sets tradition; Whether it be bringing coffee in a thermos, spreading bronchitis or sleeping in class, he's usually Number One. But if we've caught anything from David, hopefully it's motivation. Perhaps Thoreau described it best when he said;

The opportunity to express my feelings about my experiences here at Dominican over the past three years is welcome. Certain changes have occurred in my life and from conversations and experiences I have shared with other students in the over-22 year old age group, it is apparent that they as well, have experienced similar changes.

The opportunity to learn about different life-styles, cultures and values, and the classroom forum in which to discuss and evaluate these events in the light of our own experiences (differing individually as they do) is the most precious experience Dominican has afforded me. This stems, I think, from the unique climate found here. The emphasis on liberal arts and humanities and the small, seminar-type class are unique to Dominican. This atmosphere, in allowing the full exploration of ideas and feelings sharply contrasts with highly competitive grade-oriented state universities and over-crowded community colleges.

I know that the experience of questioning my values and feelings has better equipped me to deal with life's stresses. Such stresses call upon evaluative abilities in everyday situations where ethics and morals are called into question. I feel the creative approach to small and great problems emerges from a clear sense of one's self. The shifting sands of events and personal relationships in life can become meaningful within a framework which can itself, adjust and alter. If the structuring of one's values is, as I believe, a constant process, elemental trust of one's own perception and feelings is the most valuable quality of character to be had. The development and expansion of this quality occurs here through study and classroom discussion, but mainly through social interaction on the off campus.

It is becoming evident to social scientists that transition periods in life, from one stage to another, continues throughout adulthood. Women in their middle years (30's and 40's) have much in common with the younger students in their transition from late adolescence to adulthood. This is true also of those more "senior" students in their 50's and 60's, who may be adjusting to new situations and life-styles. All these age groups are represented at Dominican and the interaction and sharing of experiences can provide a rich culture and balanced perspective for those who are open to it.

I have not emphasized the pleasures of learning about a particular science or discipline, because I think that the opening up of new areas of knowledge, ideas or skills is evident to most people who are active in the process of higher education. I hope I have presented a picture however, of the intangible quality found here which often determines how much of a difference a college education can make in a life.
