

Look Up

Aaron Ruth
Dominican University of California

Survey: Let us know how this paper benefits you.

Recommended Citation

Ruth, Aaron () "Look Up," The Tuxedo Archives: Vol. 2015 , Article 16.
Available at: <https://scholar.dominican.edu/tuxedolit/vol2015/iss1/16>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the School of Liberal Arts and Education at Dominican Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Tuxedo Archives by an authorized editor of Dominican Scholar. For more information, please contact michael.pujals@dominican.edu.

Look Up

Aaron Ruth

There she was.

The most beautiful girl that one has ever laid their eyes on.

The girl that puts galaxies to shame because they yearn to shine as bright as she naturally does.

Not the girl of men's dreams, but the one of every moment they are alive.

The one that takes up all the space in anyones head.

She's the girl that makes an electric shock look pathetic because she can raise the hair on the back of a neck one million times the amount of a simple lightning strike just by simply walking through a door.

With that same electric force, she is the girl that paralyzes time.

She's the girl that makes snowflakes and leaves jealous because they can't fall as delicately as her hair does every time she flips it.

And as she was gracefully walking by on that sunny, peaceful morning, she saw him.

There he was.

The most handsome man that she has ever laid her eyes on.

When she saw him, her heartbeat was pounding harder than a jackhammer trying to break down bold concrete.

When she saw him, he was sitting there ever so peacefully, and she knew he could be the one that would prove to her that all her dreams and once upon a times about love could actually come true.

When she saw him, at first look, one could assume that a cherry had been smeared around her cheeks, due to the dominance of rosiness covering her face.

They would have a wonderful life together, as a couple.

They would wake up next to each other every morning, except for the nights that the baby was being a little too restless.

She would fix him a king's breakfast every morning before he went off to work everyday.
He would bring home flowers for her regularly, whether it was a bouquet he had bought, or a simple single flower he had picked from the yard.
He would surprise her with these flowers for no specific reason other than the fact he was so completely in love with her and he wanted to do whatever he could to contribute to her vast garden of beauty.

You see, when she saw him that morning, she instantly fell in love.
But then, immediately after, she felt heartbroken.
Due to the fact that he had not seen her.
He had no idea she had even walked by because he couldn't look up from his phone for a split second to realize that his perfect match had just strolled by.
The sad thing is, this story could be true about you, and you would have no idea.
Look up.