Dominican Urges Student Voting Via TurboVote

Nationwide, 73 colleges and universities are working with TurboVote to encourage students to register to vote and stay informed about upcoming local, state, and national elections.

On September 24 – National Voter Registration Day – Dominican students were stationed at various locations around campus with laptop computers, encouraging students, faculty, and staff to sign up at Dominican.turbovote.org to either register to vote or simply sign up to receive reminders about upcoming elections, absentee ballots, and links to important information that will help them cast an informed vote.

TurboVote operates a digital platform that tracks participants' voter status, sends them registration and absentee voter materials, and lets voters know their polling places. TurboVote also sends users texts and e-mail reminders when an election at any level of government is approaching — from the presidential election to a local school board race.

After signing up, users either can fill out voter registration forms or vote by mail using absentee ballot forms online. TurboVote prints the filled-out forms and mails them along with pre-stamped envelopes addressed to each user's local voting election board.

“It is easy to miss an election, whether it is because you have moved and have forgotten to re-register, missed a deadline to register, didn't request an absentee ballot in time, or simply haven't been able to devote enough attention to the issues in upcoming elections,” says Alison Howard, chair of the Department of Political Science and International Studies at Dominican. “TurboVote helps students register to vote and then reminds them of upcoming elections. The program is geared toward the student's locality so if there is a bond issue then it tells the student about the issue so they can do some research.”

Signing up for TurboVote at dominican.turbovote.org is free, fast, and easy, Howard adds.

The service typically costs $1.60 per form. Because Dominican has partnered with TurboVote, the University will pay the mailing fee and a small fixed sum that helps cover other costs.

“Even if you are already registered, there is still tremendous value in signing up for TurboVote,” Howard says. “The reminders about upcoming elections and the ability to easily access the information you need to cast an informed vote is really the main benefit of TurboVote.”
