

2016

Reconstruction

Kelly Bowers
Dominican University of California

Survey: Let us know how this paper benefits you.

Recommended Citation

Bowers, Kelly (2016) "Reconstruction," The Tuxedo Archives: Vol. 2005 , Article 6.
Available at: <https://scholar.dominican.edu/tuxedolit/vol2005/iss2/6>

This Poetry is brought to you for free and open access by the School of Liberal Arts and Education at Dominican Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Tuxedo Archives by an authorized editor of Dominican Scholar. For more information, please contact michael.pujals@dominican.edu.

Reconstruction

By Kelly Bowers

I.
Anxious fumbling.
Lips and hands and nerves and zippers.
Fear and wonder and guilt and pleasure.
Rough carpet scraping
the parts of me that are uncovered.
Hot breath fogs the windows of a borrowed car.
The strange and exhilarating departure from innocence.
Thrust into the newness of everything,
parts of him opening to me that I fear and crave;
my softest parts are exposed.
A small drive to get coffee, two minutes from home
strong smell of chocolate and espresso make the car feel warmer.
Wondering if this is what it feels like to be grown up and hoping it is.
Black and still on the road that we go
but we play loud music and sing about mosquitoes and libidos, some of the only words that we understand but we love it and that kind of thing is something else that glues us together.

Kelly Bowers

I attained my undergrad degree in Literature at SSU and am currently pursuing my MA in Humanities w/ an emphasis in Creative Writing at Dominican. Some things that I love are: the beach, Tim Burton movies, drug literature, Ireland, the Violent Femmes, vampires, The Sandman comic books, mythology, Irvine Welsh, erotica, and Poe. I live with my husband and 3 cats in Rohnert Park.