2017

The Benefits of Music Education in the Mild to Moderate Special Education Classroom, Grades 3-5

Kimberly Lloyd

Dominican University of California

---

Survey: Let us know how this paper benefits you.

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholar.dominican.edu/scw

Part of the Art Education Commons, and the Special Education and Teaching Commons

---

https://scholar.dominican.edu/scw/scw2017/all-conference/63

---

This Event is brought to you for free and open access by the The Dominican Experience at Dominican Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Scholarly & Creative Works Conference 2019 by an authorized administrator of Dominican Scholar. For more information, please contact michael.pujals@dominican.edu.
The Benefits of Music Education in the Mild to Moderate Special Education Classroom, Grades 3-5

KIMBERLY G. LLOYD
DOMINICAN UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
SCHOLARLY & CREATIVE WORKS CONFERENCE
APRIL 20, 2017
A local arts organization in need of a new assessment tool to measure the impact of music on students...

- Linked to IEP goals
- Tracked through their educational careers
- On a per student basis
Does music education impact 3rd – 5th grade students with mild to moderate disabilities in developing their academic, social and/or behavioral goals as identified in their Individualized Education Programs (IEPs)?
Research shows that there are benefits to including the arts in general education

- Champions of Change: The Impact of the Arts on Learning, Edited by Edward B. Fiske
- Critical Links: Learning in the Arts and Student Academic and Social Development, Edited by Richard J. Deasy

Literature on the benefits of including the arts in special education is limited
Study

- Qualitative case study
  - 9 week music program in a 3rd-5th grade SDC
  - Document review of IEPs
  - Teacher, parent, music teacher interviews
  - Music class observations
  - 3 participants
Participants

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Carmen*</th>
<th>Luis*</th>
<th>John*</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• 9 year old female</td>
<td>• 8 year old male</td>
<td>• 9 year old male</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Disability: ID</td>
<td>• Disability: ID, SLD</td>
<td>• Disability: ASD, ID</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Goal: To verbalize her wants and needs</td>
<td>• Goal: Follow teacher directions</td>
<td>• Goal: To participate in group activities</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*To protect confidentiality, students were assigned a pseudonym.
Findings

- Music program offered social and behavioral benefits

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Carmen</th>
<th>Luis</th>
<th>John</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>IEP goal stayed at baseline</td>
<td>IEP goal met</td>
<td>IEP goal met</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

- There continues to be a need for research on this topic
“The arts provide all sorts of wondrous opportunities for all children. However, for exceptional students [students with disabilities], the arts are often a savior, a respite, and a solace that give these children a chance to express themselves and feel good about themselves.”

--Sally Smith, founder of the Lab School for Children with Disabilities